Macroeconomic Trends

Trends Impacting Future Growth

DISTILLED SPIRITS COUNCIL OF THE UNITED STATES

Macro factors expected to impact the U.S. economy this year

Inflation: Costs are rising across the board.

A combination of factors including (but not limited to) strong demand, workforce shortages, and supply chain disruptions have driven up prices, especially for energy, transportation, and food. Inflation has reached the highest level since 1982. (BLS)

Workforce shortages continue.

Most manufacturers say worker shortages combined with the tight labor market are negatively impacting production & deliveries. (NAM)

Supply chain challenges are severe but expected to improve.

Historically high supply chain pressures are expected to abate this year. (IMF)

The economy finished strong in 2021 but growth is expected to slow.

Q4 2021 GDP exceeded expectations. Within personal consumption expenditures, consumer spending on food service and accommodations was a key contributor to GDP growth. (BEA) However, U.S economic growth is expected to slow in 2022. (IMF)

Real disposable income still higher than pre-pandemic levels.

After significant gains in 2020, real disposable declined in 2021, but current levels are still higher than 2019. (BEA)

Seeking Tax Fairness on Spirits-based Ready-to-Drink (RTD) Products

- There has been tremendous innovation and transformation in the RTD category
- Pandemic has accelerated the growth of spirits-based RTDs
- Consumers are forced to pay much higher taxes for a spirits-based RTD product even if it has the same or similar ABV as a malt-, sugar- or wine-based product

Craft Distillers Are Resilient but Continue to Face Significant Challenges

Tourism is picking up but still impacted by pandemic

- Tasting room sales impacted, which account for more than 30-50 percent of sales
- Key to creating brand experience

Unstable on-premise recovery

- Local restaurants and bars are critical sales channels for generating awareness of local craft brands

Supply chain disruptions

- Material shortages: glass, labels, closures
- Rising costs of inputs and transportation

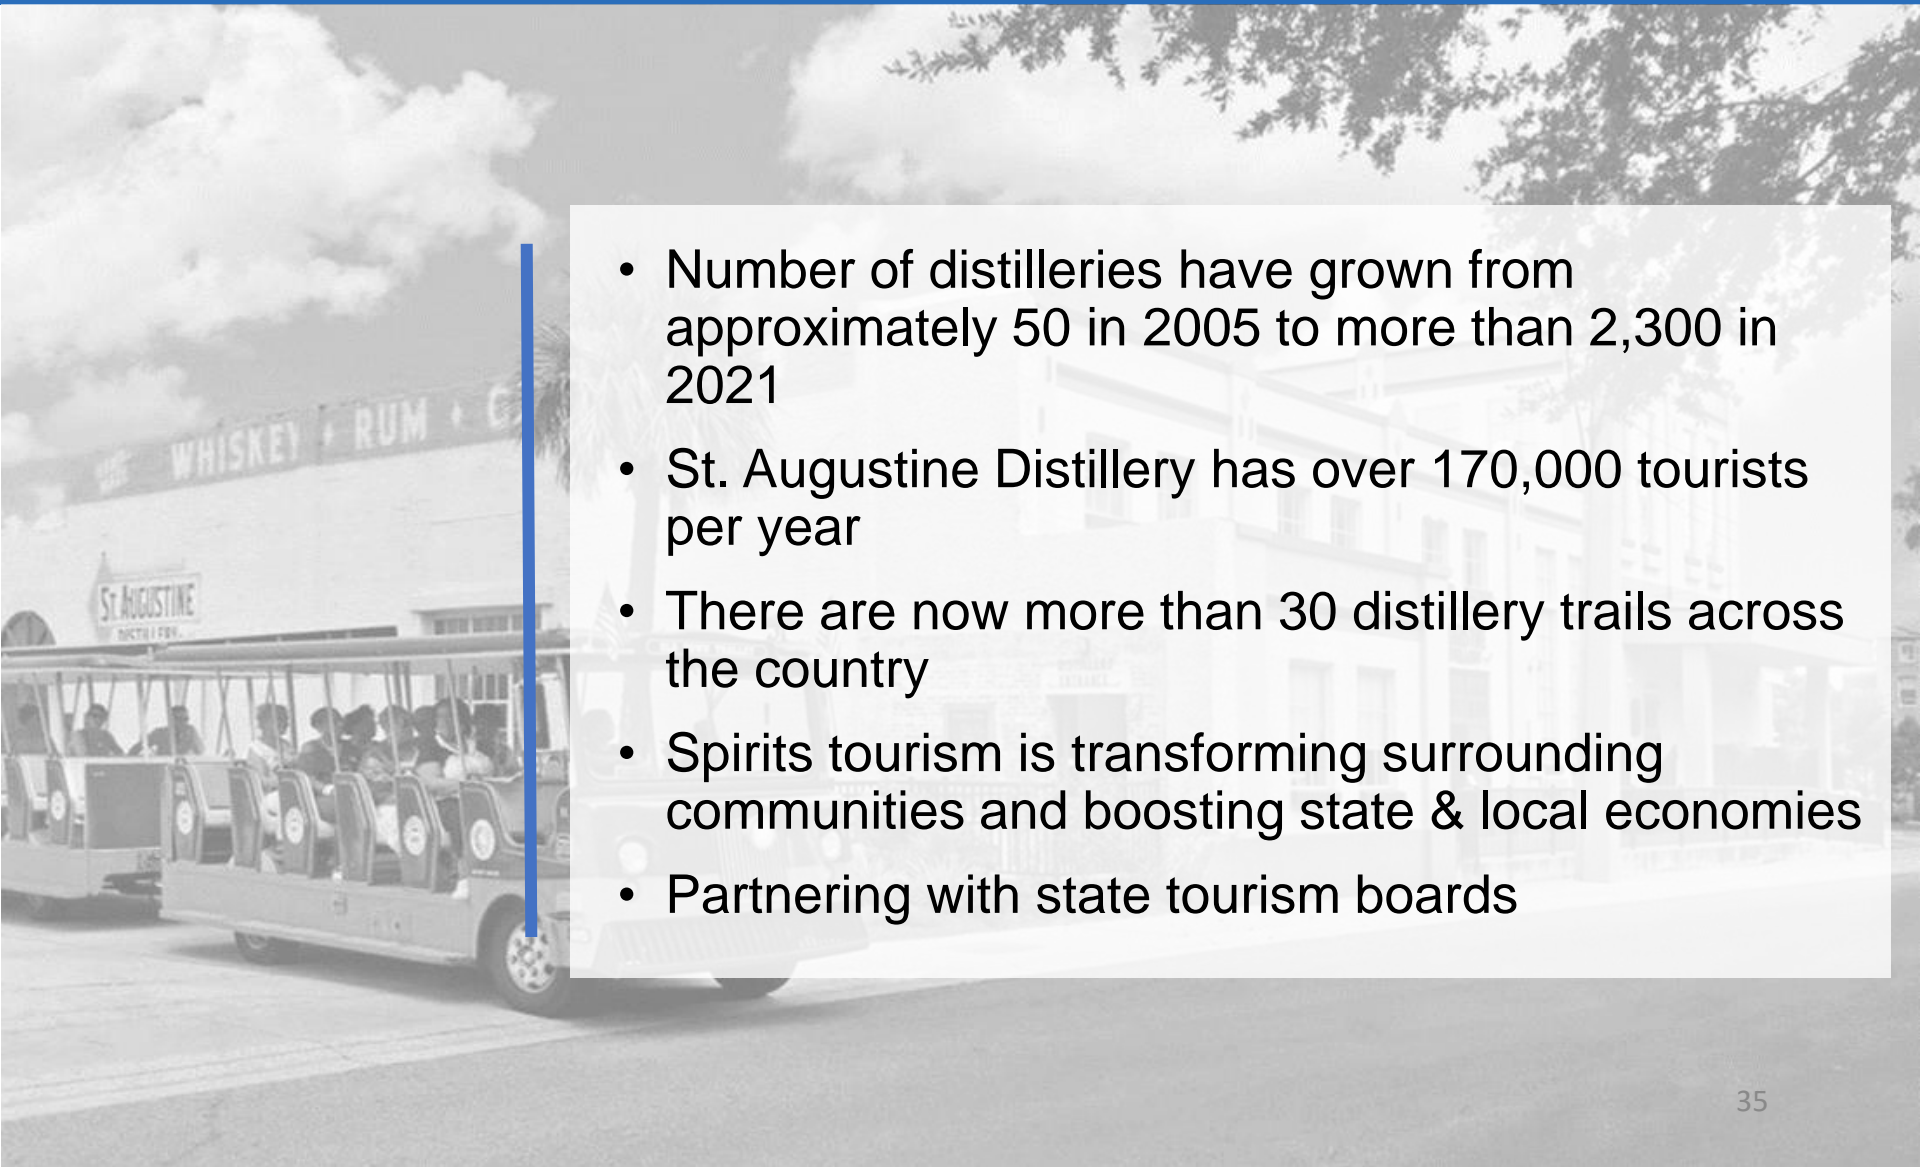

Staff shortages

- Many hospitality workers have left the industry
- Rising Covid infections have impacted staffing

Growth and Importance of Spirits Tourism

- A background image showing a white tour vehicle with a canopy, filled with people, parked in front of a building. The building has a sign that reads "WHISKEY + RUM + CO." and another sign that says "ST. AUGUSTINE DISTILLERY".
- Number of distilleries have grown from approximately 50 in 2005 to more than 2,300 in 2021
 - St. Augustine Distillery has over 170,000 tourists per year
 - There are now more than 30 distillery trails across the country
 - Spirits tourism is transforming surrounding communities and boosting state & local economies
 - Partnering with state tourism boards

Measures Federal & State Leaders Can Take To Support Growth of Distilleries

Remove UK retaliatory tariffs on American Whiskey

- Returning to tariff free trade will boost exports of large & small distilleries

Permit direct-to-consumer shipping of spirits from distilleries

- 47 states permit wine DTC, only 11 permit spirits
- At pandemic's start, six states permitted temporary spirits DTC for in-state consumers (NY& MT expired)

Expand market access and create fairer tax structure for spirits-based RTDs

- Approximately 62% of craft distillers not producing spirits-based RTDs identified unfair tax rates as a barrier to entry. (2021 DISCUS survey)

Make cocktails-to-go permanent

Hold the line on alcohol tax hikes
